the moon

Independent watchmaker Andreas Strehler will unveil the incredibly impressive Sauterelle a Lune Perpetuelle 2M at Salon QP this year. The 2M in the name stands for the two million years of precision of the indication of the moon: once the phase of the moon has been set, you only have to correct it – and by just one day – after 2,060,757 years. Requiring only four parts, it's the most precise moon phase ever built.
